NO MĀKOU KA MANA LIBERATING THE NATION
Kamanamaikalani Beamer
“No Mākou ka Mana is exhaustively researched, carefully written, and powerfully argued…a major contribution to Hawaiian history and Hawaiian studies…The clear analysis, engaging narrative, and original voice will serve as inspiration to other small nations and indigenous peoples the world over.”

— Noenoe K. Silva

“Beamer’s study highlights native agency in the face of Western imperialism. This is a dicey political trade-off for Kānaka Maoli, who must sacrifice the role of victim—and its political potential for reparation—in order to explore the nature of native cooperation and engagement with Europeans and Americans and their nineteenth-century imperialist agendas…Ultimately, if we are to have a clearer sense of what colonialism really is in the modern age—not just about conquest, but more about influence and hegemony—we need this book.”

— Jonathan Kay Kamakawiwo'ole Osorio

Please join Kamehameha Publishing and Hawai`inui`akea School of Hawaiian Knowledge in celebrating the launch of

No Mākou ka Mana: Liberating the Nation
by Kamanamaikalani Beamer

Tuesday evening, October 7, 2014

Hālau o Haumea
Kamakakūckkalani Center for Hawaiian Studies
University of Hawai‘i at Mānoa

5:30 p.m. Reception
6:00 p.m. Author Talk
6:30 p.m. Book Sale and Author Signing

featuring music by WAIPUNA

For more information, contact publishing@ksbe.edu or call 808-534-3980.