The International Human Rights Puzzle: Where Do Indigenous Peoples Fit?

Professor Carol Petersen taught law in Hong Kong for 17 years before coming to the William S. Richardson School of Law in 2006. She currently serves as the Director of the Matsunaga Institute for Peace and Conflict Resolution and teaches International Law and Disputes; Topics in Conflict Theory: Complaints Resolution by Human Rights Agencies; and Introduction to Human Rights: International and Comparative Perspectives.

Professor Tae-Ung Baik earned his master (LL.M) and doctoral (JSD) law degrees in international human rights law from Notre Dame Law School and worked for Human Rights Watch in New York. He also researched human rights issues as a visiting scholar at Harvard Law School. In 2012 he published, “Emerging Regional Human Rights Systems in Asia.” Professor Baik teaches international law, international criminal law, human rights, comparative law, and Korean law.

Moderated by Professor Alison Conner
Professor Conner taught at several law schools throughout the world, including in China, Singapore and Hong Kong, before coming to the William S. Richardson School of Law. She also organized and directed the law school’s LL.M. Program for Foreign Lawyers, and specializes in Chinese law and legal history. She currently serves as the international programs director.
