Intellectual Property Law Week
at the William S. Richardson School of Law

China vs. Google: The Clash of Titans
Featuring Professor Xuan-Thao Nguyen, Professor Robert Gomulkiewicz, and Fellow Yutian Ling
Moderated by Robert Carson Godbey, Esq.

March 16-18, 2010
12:30- 2:00 p.m.
Moot Courtroom
Lunch Provided – First Come, First Served

Intellectual Property Law Week 2010 provides a platform to discuss the most timely and relevant IP issues affecting governments, companies, and individuals around the globe through a three day lunch series centered on the recent Google v. China battle.

Tuesday, March 16, 2010 from 12:30-2:00 PM
Topic: Intellectual Property and the “New” China
Professor Xuan–Thao Nguyen will discuss a new era for China with respect to enforcing intellectual property rights.
Professor Xuan-Thao Nguyen teaches at Southern Methodist University Dedman School of Law where she focuses on the interdisciplinary of intellectual property, the Internet, commercial law and taxation in her teaching and scholarship. She has co-authored several treatises, casebooks, and law review articles. She is the first American law professor to lecture at the Vietnam National University Faculty of Law in Hanoi and, as a 2009 Fulbright Scholar, she developed their new Intellectual Property law major.

Wednesday, March 17, 2010 from 12:30-2:00 PM
Topic: China vs. Google: The Clash of Titans
Moderated by Robert Carson Godbey, Esq. of Godbey Griffith LLLP
Matsunaga Peace Institute Fellow Yutian Ling will lead the panel including Professor Xuan–Thao Nguyen and Professor Robert Gomulkiewicz, on a comparative look at the development of Internet policy, intellectual property law, and open source initiatives in the new China and what the future may hold.
Yutian Ling graduated from the University of British Columbia in Engineering Physics and from the Boston University School of Law. He is currently working at the Matsunaga Institute for Peace and the Institute of Asian-Pacific Business Law as a public interest law fellow, sponsored by the law firm of Ropes and Gray in Boston.

Thursday, March 18, 2010 from 12:30-2:00 PM
Topic: Open Source License Proliferation: Helpful Diversity or Hopeless Confusion?
Professor Robert Gomulkiewicz will discuss license proliferation across the globe in the age of free and open software.
Professor Robert Gomulkiewicz directs the graduate program in Intellectual Property Law and Policy at the University of Washington. He has published books and law review articles on open source software, mass market licensing, the UCITA, and legal protection for software. He is also the author of the Simple Public License (SimPL) which is a plain language rendering of the venerable GNU General Public License. He also was Associate General Counsel at Microsoft for development of Microsoft's major systems software, desktop applications, and developer tools software (including Windows and Office) and had worked on the Apple v. Microsoft case in private practice.